

Supporting your young person while they are at home

Young people can find changes to their normal routines difficult to understand and accept. This can sometimes lead to them feeling anxious, upset or confused.

We can help to support them through this difficult time by using visual timelines. A timeline uses pictures to represent an activity e.g bath time, lunch, playing on the computer.

Using a visual timeline can help to put structure into their day. It can support the young person so know what is going to happen and help develop familiar routines.

Young people are familiar with using visual timelines in school to represent what they will be doing across the school day. Timelines can be used interactively with symbols being removed from a strip when then activity has finished.

How to use Visual Timelines at home

There are different ways a timeline can be used.

They can be used to represent activities for the whole day or can be broken up to 'morning', 'afternoon' and 'evening' routines.

Some young people need to know what is going to happen throughout the week, especially when special activities are going to happen. They will benefit from a timeline that shows the whole week.

Remember: When an activity has finished you must remove the symbol from the timeline and point to the next symbol to show the young person what is happening next in their day.
